REQUEST FOR OPINION

Question: Should Boise State University put a cap on the number of hours students work? If so, should the cap be at 20 hours?
Introduced by: Rebecca Kopp, Speaker of the Assembly
On: October 21, 2015

MAJORITY OPINION

Opinion: Students do not support the University putting a cap on the number of hours students can work.
Rationale: The students of Boise State University should not be constrained by the number of hours they work. Students face a heavy burden from financial needs, and limiting their hours will force them to find work off campus. As adults, student employees should be allowed to work however many hours they see fit.

MINORITY OPINION

Opinion: Students support the cap on the number of hours they work on campus, but the cap should not be at 20 hours.
Rationale: The students of Boise State University should have cap on the number of hours they work, but 20 hours is too limiting to the financial needs of the students workers. Any cap at 20 hours or lower will force the students to find work else.
